Once again Cappellini gives space to the journey in search of young talents with the debut of the Belgian Nik Aelbrecht, who has created Openup, a collection of tables praising purity and lightness, floating between eternal balance and constant collapse. A sensual game of lines, details and shadows makes the table suitable for a dining room of a large mansion or even for modern and unconventional living areas. Simple yet complex, it is made of a base of laser-cut painted metal and a top in ash plywood.

The extreme formal synthesis is also apparent in the colours, white and black, symbols of the most contemporary vision.
