

Table à Plateau Interchangeable Outdoor

Designed Charlotte Perriand

Initially created in 1937 for Charlotte Perriand's workshop in Montparnasse, the Table à Plateau Interchangeable's base consists of three circular legs joined by cross pieces that support the tabletop.

As the name implied, the top is interchangeable. A project designed to be used in various ways; in fact, the model would be used in many of Perriand's other subsequent projects, from the Japanese inspired projects of the 1940s, with tops or woven trays made with local materials, for the living rooms of the Unité d'Habitation flats in Marseille.

The Table à Plateau Interchangeable, today part of the Cassina I Maestri Collection, has also been developed for outdoor use. The outdoor version has a solid teak structure and top in Carrara marble with an oiled finish in two sizes like the indoor model.
